Light-colored and the red and all parts must be made entirely by hand. Red is made by dipping wood in red ink and then dipping it in white ink. The red ink is made by dipping wood in red ink and then dipping it in white ink. The white ink is made by dipping wood in white ink and then dipping it in red ink. The red ink is made by dipping wood in red ink and then dipping it in white ink. The white ink is made by dipping wood in white ink and then dipping it in red ink.

Small, triangular, somewhat flat, a little thicker at corners than sides, with some faint, yellowish-brown, wavy lines at corners, and some faint, brownish, wavy lines at corners.
